Arrangements are being made to rectify these minor vices. Yes, as a lecturer at the university, I supervised the students' work and observed their progress. I noticed that many students were struggling with the coursework, and I decided to provide extra support. I began by organizing study groups, where the students could work together and foster a sense of community. I also offered one-on-one tutoring sessions, which were very popular with the students. As a result, their performance improved significantly, and they were able to achieve better grades.

This experience taught me the importance of providing support and encouragement to students. It is essential for educators to understand the challenges faced by their students and provide the necessary support to help them succeed. By doing so, we can create a more positive learning environment and help our students reach their full potential.
